Our lives at Central become a part of a dynamic pattern of constantly changing ideas. We contribute by our very existence. The challenge arises when we must face whether each of us will be a positive or negative contribution to the changes.

Diocesan Directors Promote Unity

Encouraging spiritual ideals and quality education, Bishop Joseph McShea guides the diocesan school board in its attempt to insure Catholic concepts during an era of moral transition. Assisting in the formulation of feasible policies, the Superintendent of Education, Dr. James J. Cusimano weighs vital issues essential to a smooth-flowing educational system.

Directing the council, Monsignor Raymond J. Leichner displays spiritual inspiration in reviewing and advising all prospective proposals. Reverend Walter Scheaffer, Reverend Michael F. Piovane, Sister M. St. Raymond, I.H.M., and Sister Theresa Marth, M.S.C., gear their energies in developing programs for Christian living.

Leaders Encourage Educational Process

Reverend Thomas J. Birch returned to the halls of C.C.H.S., not as teacher, but as chief administrator. Experienced in this position, Father harnessed the system of modular scheduling and instituted disciplinary reforms, physical renovations, and special privileges for upperclassmen.

Father's colleague, Mr. James Hodrick assumed the vital role of coordinator of activities. In addition, Mr. Hodrick demonstrated his concern for the Centralite community in arranging assemblies, in participating at council meetings, and in managing fund-raising drives. The achievements of this duo represent time and effort, combined factors that nuture a successful institution of learning.

The past performances of the Academic and Community Councils prompted their renewal for a third year. While the Academic Council, with Father Birch as chairman, investigated the intellectual path of students, the Community Council, directed by Mr. Stanley Dombrowski, attempted to strengthen communication lines among administration, faculty, and students.

Upper Left: Reverend Thomas J. Birch, Principal. Middle Left: Academic Council: Miss Patricia McAndrew, Mr. James M. Hodrick, Sister Marie Perpetua, S.S.J., Reverend George J. Wierzalis, Sister Marie Therese, I.H.M., Sister Patricia Anne, O.S.F., Sister Sponsa Regis, I.H.M., Sister St. Elizabeth, I.H.M., Sister John Beatrice, S.S.J., Sister M. Floretta, M.S.C., Sister Edward Elizabeth, O.S.F., Sister M. Christopher, O.S.F., Reverend Thomas J. Birch. Lower Left: Community Council: Mr. Stanley J. Dombrowski, Mr. John Darraugh, Sister Anne De Concini, R.S.M., Sister Grace Steckel, O.S.F., Sister Emily Therese, R.S.M., Sister Mary Ellen, I.H.M. Missing: Mrs. Mary E. Miller, Reverend Edward B. Connolly, Sister Edward Elizabeth, O.S.F. Lower: Mr. James M. Hodrick, Vice-Principal.

Religious Spark Christian Ideals

Members of the theology department comprise an integral segment of the C.C.H.S. community. Teachers encountered daily the inquisitive minds and searching questions of maturing individuals confused by controversial social issues and by the relevance of the commandments. Realizing the purpose of a Catholic education, religious instructors presented spiritual ideology in formulating relevant and logical answers to these sensitive questions.

Under the supervision of Reverend George Wierzalis, the staff endeavored to give the student an understanding of the life of Christ, in spite of today's fast-paced society.

Religion Becomes Uniquely Personal

Theology involves the study of the Christian's response to his faith, how he lives and expresses his decision for or against the Lord.

Centralites began their studies as freshmen by examining the life and mission of Jesus and the implications of his message. Armed with this knowledge, sophomores deepened their understanding of the Church, grace, free will, and the concept of worship.

Juniors investigated the Old and New Testaments and the problem of God: belief and unbelief, the major Christian and non-Christian faiths, and the religious view of human sexuality. By recognizing and accepting themselves as Christians in a modern world, seniors reviewed faith in terms of a mature commitment in the areas of moral judgment, social justice, and marriage.

Upper: Engrossed in the teachings of the New Testament, Patricia Ryan and Susan Saia venture into the Infancy Narrative of St. Luke. Middle: Seniors contemplate on the moral issues of capital punishment. Lower Left: Through small group discussions, Christina Roman and Patricia Sellers acquire a knowledge of Christ's teachings. Lower Right: With a deeper understanding of the sacraments, Paula Spinosa realizes the importance of Penance.

Scientists Discover Perplexing Wonders

Beginning their scientific studies, freshmen took part in either the Intermediate Science Curriculum II or III or BSCS Biology. Placing stress on the nature, growth, and the function of scientific theories, the BSCS Biology course fascinated a few select frosh and the majority of sophomores.

Building on this foundation, enterprising sophomores and most juniors tackled Chem Study, an analytic subject with close coordination between textbook and laboratory. Progressing to an even greater degree, third year Centralites and seniors possessing inquisitive qualities embarked upon the principles of Chemistry II and Biology II.

Three levels of physics, courses open only to seniors, employed the use of mechanical models to explain thermodynamics, optics, and sound. Exploring also such disciplines as heat, light, and electricity all three stages enabled experimentalists to grasp ideas of the physical world.

Experimentalists Search for Answers

Investigating the mysteries of the intricately functioning universe, science teachers initiated inquiry through experimentation. Physics, biology, chemistry, and an intermediate science curriculum study summoned the attention of students stimulated by indepth research and direct application of theories.

Central's science department headed by Sister Edward Elizabeth, O.S.F., presented a lab-oriented approach which enabled Centralites to appreciate the scientific unity underlying the diversity of life.

Antiquarians Unravel Intrinsic Existence

Social studies includes a wide range of subjects dealing with the economic, political, and racial philosophies man encounters in everyday living, in addition to the circumstances surrounding the development of unfolding world cultures. Teachers furnished an understanding of our political system and its influence on our social relationships and created a conceptual framework which enabled us to analyze today's political phenomena.

Central's social science department supervised by Sister Marie Perpetua, S.S.J., examined the interrelationships of the individual with many groups in society in an attempt to understand human behavior in theory and practice. Historians also utilized a comparative approach to questions to gain an overall comprehension of our nature.

Historians Explore the Past and Present

Examining those elements which influence the behavior of the buyer such as advertising and labor unions, prompted many Centralites to engage in the Economics and Consumer Education course. Other students found American Political Behavior and International Relations, a program focusing on the relationship existing among basic social science concepts, an appropriate selection.

Communism and Democracy, a course open to juniors only, presented a study of the roots, development, and unfolding of the cultures of these two types of governments. Upperclassmen interested in understanding human behavior in theory and practice participated in Social Psychology, while those intrigued by ethnic and racial groups took part in Minorities in American History.

Anthropology and Third World summoned individuals concerned with man in relationship to his way of life in culture and fascinated with investigating the plight of underdeveloped regions. Freshmen and sophomores filled their course requirements by studying World Cultures and American Cultures respectively.

Mathematicians Find Numbers Fascinating

Reviewing grade school math, freshmen involved in Fundamentals of Mathematics concentrated on such topics as numbers and their relationships to each other. Those who wished to further these concepts engaged in the Algebra I program which dealt with equalities and inequalities or Modern Algebra I a study of polynomials and functions and their graphs.

Summoning sophomore attention, two geometry courses, including a unified and transformational approach, conveyed the principles of lines, planes, and angles. Juniors interested in enriching their mathematical knowledge found a second year of algebra beneficial, a subject which stressed proofs and trigonometry.

Completing their high school study of the science of numbers, seniors participated in a variety of math classes. Limits and derivatives perplexed Calculus students while Math Analysis prepared college bound Centralites. Mathematics Review offered students generally needed skills and Mechanical Drawing combined math and drawing on a technical level.

Educators Display Mathematical Abilities

Teachers equipped with minds capable of technical reasoning presented an intensive program designed to convey the principles of the science of numbers. Instructors of such caliber emphasized the application of derivatives, circular functions, algebraic proofs, and Euclidean geometry.

Sister M. Floretta, M.S.C., director of the math department, in unison with the staff incorporated courses with both analytical aspects and practical concepts. Both of these methods helped to explain to students the deductive reasoning and the precision language of all postulational calculations.

Artisans Emphasize Universal Values

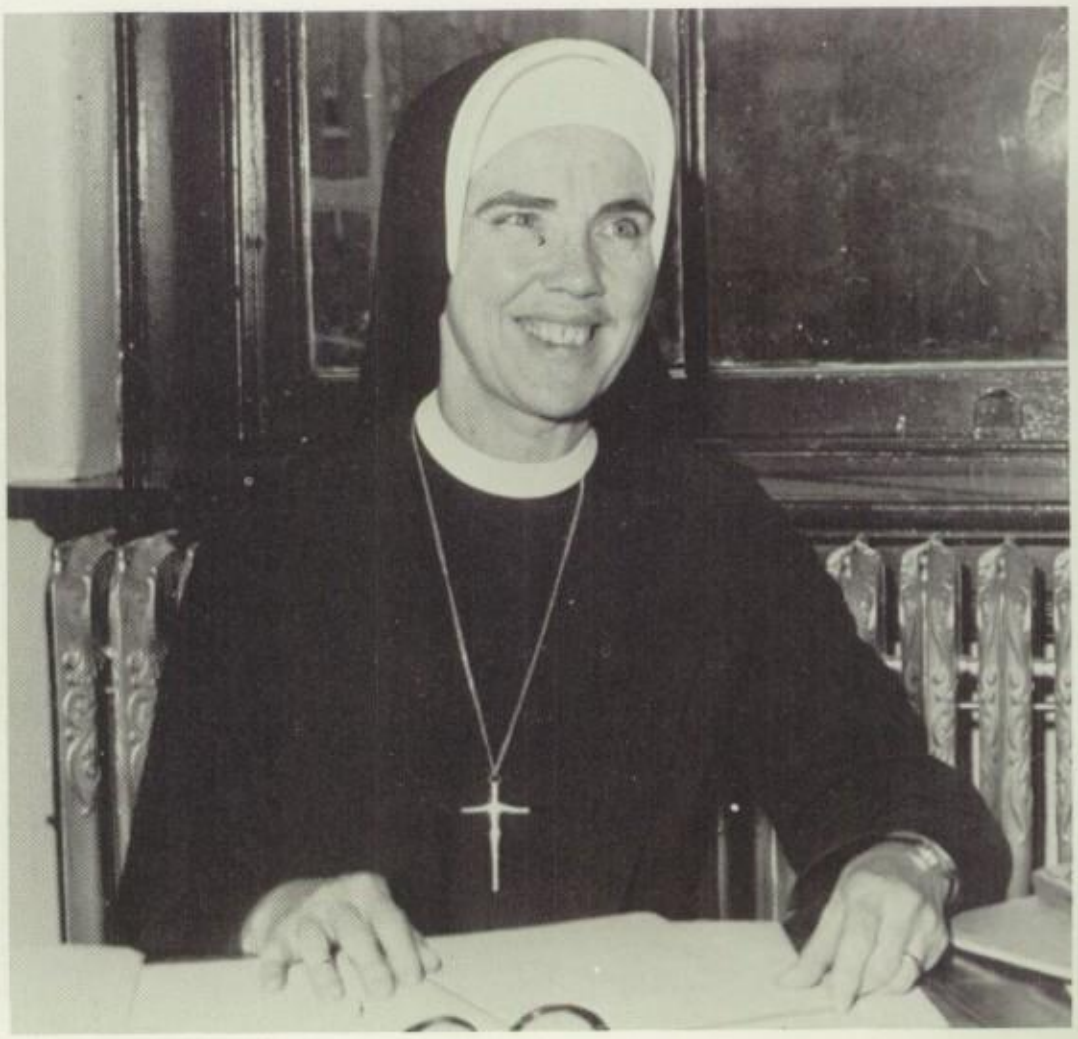
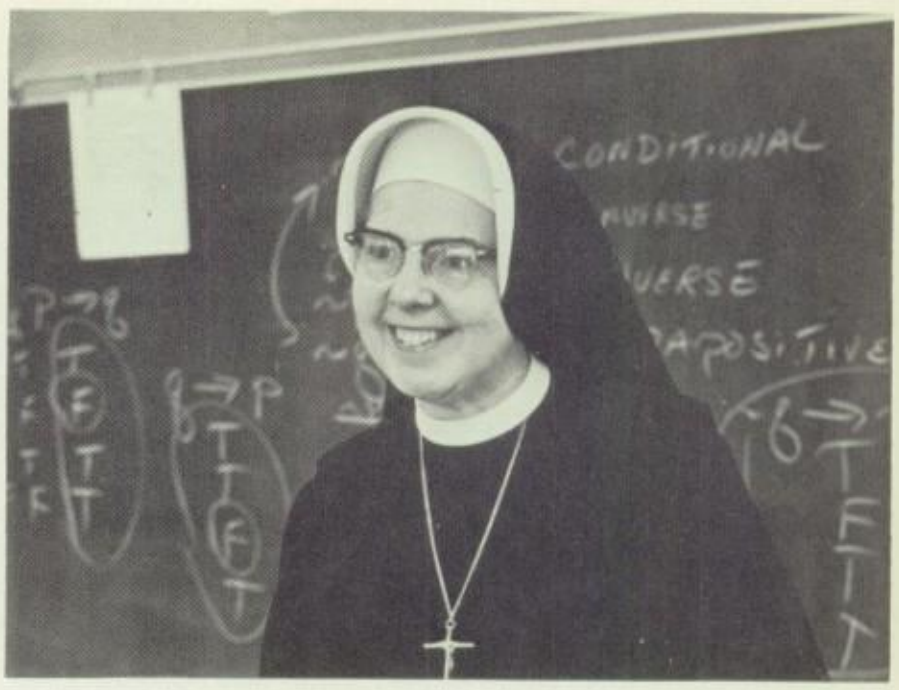
Literary trends spring from our multi-faceted existence. Realizing this, Central's humanitarians led by Sister Marie Therese, I.H.M., introduced the world's literary cavalcade of American and European classics in a challenging style so as to stimulate our imaginations.

Teachers also found it essential in guiding students to discover, develop, and express ideas in a lively, effective manner. Stressing the basic writing skills and proper mechanics, instructors helped to establish in Centralites an awareness of clear expression in narration, description, and exposition.





Upper Left: Sister Dolores Ann, I.H.M., Effective Writing I, The Art of Narration, Twentieth Century Fiction. Upper Right: Sister Mary Ellen, I.H.M., Themes in Western Literature, Great Authors in World Literature, Significant Plays in the Development of Drama, Twentieth Century Fiction, Journalism, Journalistic Writing I, Journalistic Writing II, SENESCHAL moderator, Community Council. Middle Left: Mr. William Teilman, Western Literature, Effective Writing I, Basic Communications, Literary Explorations I, Narrative Literature, Forensics Moderator. Above: Sister James Anthony, I.H.M., Early American Literature, Themes in Western Literature, Modern American Literature, Twentieth Century Fiction. Lower Left: Sister Immaculata Mary I.H.M., Major British Authors, Literary Explorations II, Effective Writing II, Literature of Social Protest, GLEN ECHOES Moderator. Opposite Page: Upper Right: Sister Marie Therese, I.H.M., Advanced Reading Techniques, Expository Writing, Detective and Adventure Stories, English Department Chairman, Academic Council. Upper Left: Sister Nicholas Mary, I.H.M., English Resource Center. Middle Far Right: Mrs. Lucia Hoch, English I, Western Literature, Modern Literature, Band Front Moderator. Middle Right: Miss Ellen Stefanou, Language Arts, Usage, College Preparatory. Lower Left: Sister Grace Steckel, O.S.F., Poetry, Western Literature, Effective Writing I, Language Arts, QUILL, Moderator, Community Council. Lower Right: Sister Kathleen Dolores, I.H.M., English I.

Apprentices Examine Myriad Philosophies

For a second year the English curriculum offered courses which ranged from phase 1 to 5 to benefit each student's interest, need, and potential.

Language Arts I and II provided instruction for Centralites in the areas of spelling, oral communication, and reading, while phases 1 and 2 concentrated on improving basic skills of writing, speaking, and thinking. The intermediate stages summoned the greatest percentage of participation. Twentieth Century Fiction emphasized the concepts of character, plot, setting, theme, conflict, and climax, and Beowulf to Beatles acquainted students with poetry and how it can enrich the lives of those who come to terms with it. Other subjects within this middle phase included Effective Writing I and Themes in Western Literature.

Higher phases challenged Vikings looking for stimulating academic experiences. Such programs involved Major British Authors, Modern American Literature, and Effective Writing II. Humanitarians interested in advancement enrolled in the minor courses including Journalism I and II, Reading, Usage, and College Bound Preparation.

Translators Bridge World Wide Pathways

Handling a foreign tongue such as French, German Latin, or Spanish posed a challenge and a delight fo those students involved. Aside from studying basic com munication skills, Centralites also delved into each coun try's history, culture, and literature.

Beginning linguists concentrated on fundamentals o the language with an emphasis on oral expression an aural comprehension. Tapes and visual equipmen enriched each course. Second year lessons stressed th more complex grammar structures and introduced pres entations of cultural material.

By the use of textual readings, dictations, tapes an recordings, third year individuals strengthened audi understanding. In the final year, Central's international ists took part in a program that exposed literature with out translation and reviewed basic mechanics. In conver sational courses, students practiced speech techniques i order to develop lingual adeptness.

Interpreters Uncover Foreign Capabilities

Aside from the basic courses of English and math, foreign language teachers introduced to aspiring students an array of tongues including French, German, Latin, and Spanish. To develop lingual facility in class, instructors stressed the fundamentals of oral expression, aural comprehension, complex grammar structures, and practical conversation. To supplement these essentials, linguists, assigned outside investigations of tapes and recordings to expose a country's cultural heritage.

Under the supervision of Sister John Beatrice, S.S.J., the staff presented a multi-track program enriched by audio-visual aides which enabled Centralites to understand and communicate with people of different backgrounds.

Teachers Promote Clerical Expertise

With the major role business corporations play in today's economic drama, Central's business department, headed by Sister Patricia Anne, O.S.F., attempted to provide future executives with the necessary skills in the areas of stenography, typing, business law, and data processing.

Instructors communicated to aspiring businessmen the basic theory and practice of accounting and defined the legal rights of citizens. Secretarial adeptness developed through keyboard stroking and notetaking by the use of Gregg shorthand. Presentations of the operations of various types of office equipment by the staff and a study of filing procedures produced employable office workers.

Executives Build Corporate Relations

Through the presentations of cases, problems, and questions, students gained an understanding and appreciation of legalities in the Business Law course. Supplementing this, the Data Processing program offered Centralites information essential to a comprehension of automation: its advantages and limitations and its significance to the business firm. Accounting practitioners covered all the financial operations of a small business corporation, while promising professionals in Business Machines employed the use of both electrical and manual models of adding machines, duplicators, calculators, and typewriters.

Clerical Practice developed in future secretaries techniques which aim for personable public relations. Stenography and Typing classes provided for Vikings skill in reading and writing Gregg Shorthand in order to take dictation and transcribe accurately on the typewriter.

Specialized Leaders Motivate Students

Central's sixteen mod busy schoolday incorporated both subjects concentrating on brain power and a diverse array of courses offering relaxing outlets for exhausted scholars. Mr. Kinek and the physical education department opened doors to challenging and vigorous physical exercise including gymnastics for girls and hockey for boys. Miss McAndrew and home economists conveyed simple cooking techniques and hints for clothing construction in preparing both males and females for future home living. A segment of the art department's curriculum, an introduction to drawing, under the direction of Mr. Eggleston, expanded the facility of various media.

Creative Subjects Offer Enrichment

Introducing drawing, basic forms, perspective, and nature interpretation, the Art I program afforded students an opportunity to study design, composition, color, and harmony through the use of pencil, charcoal, and pastels. Participants in the Art II course moved on to the advanced media of watercolor, pen, brush, ink, tempra, and clay.

Foods I led home economists to discover the importance of good eating habits, while Clothing I introduced to junior and senior girls the world of fashion, color, fabrics, beauty hints, and basic garment construction. Pursuing these two courses further, Centralites engaged in Foods II which unfolded the world of gracious living and Clothing II which involved the concepts of design and style. Liberated males found the Chef's Course challenging and informative. Females interested in domestic living, participated in a new class, Child Development, which allowed these upperclassmen direct contact with preschoolers every cycle at Sacred Heart Grade School.

Gym classes sought to establish in both girls and boys a sense of balance, coordination, strength, agility, and total physical abilities. The health program concentrated on man's understanding of himself in relation to hygienic matters in a changing society. Enabling individuals to follow careers in mechanical, architectural, and cosmetological fields, the vocational-technical curriculum summoned non-college bound Vikings.

Minstrels Quest for Melodic Accuracy

Centralites interested in a well rounded cultural background became more familiar with musical forms and took part in performing units. Sister St. Elizabeth, I.H.M., conductor of the music department, and her counterpart, Mr. John Bookholt led the parade.

As part of the freshman curriculum, students engaged in a program of Music Appreciation which included basic theory, intensive listening, and a brief survey of history. Elective courses comprised of Theory I and II, History of Music, and Mechanics of Music allowed avid musicians the privilege of creating their original compositions.

The concert and marching bands, the wind ensemble, stage band, and orchestra developed in performers a keen sense of aesthetic values while entertaining at assemblies, sports' activities, and in competition. Vocal skills expanded in girls', boys', and special choruses at Christmas shows and in the spring musicale. Through the harmonious efforts of this department C.C.H.S. constantly resounded with rhythmic overtones.

School Personnel Balance Activities

With the stress placed on a college education and the accessibility of a job after graduation, Mr. Ibarra and the guidance staff newly situated within one complex in Rockne assisted seniors and underclassmen through personal encounters in planning profitable futures. Cloaked with pamphlets, the guidance bulletin board informed the student body of scholarships and places of employment.

Students plagued with term papers and research topics found consolation in Sister Sponsa Regis, I.H.M., and her assistants who made available endless streams of information. Students also found that the carpeting and extra working room of 111 provided a much more relaxed atmosphere for concentration.

A busy, yet jovial mood prevailed in the main office, throughout the cafeteria, and halls because of the amicable personalities of the secretaries, cafeteria women, and maintenance workers.

As a result of the untiring efforts of the administration and faculty, C.C.H.S. found itself well prepared for the Middle States Evaluation Committee composed of twenty-two members who rated the Centralite community on November 19, 20, and 21.

Promoting better understanding among the student body, faculty, and administration, and acting as spokesmen for all Centralites, student council members sponsored assemblies, carried out a freshman orientation program, and planned a club day so all co-curricular activities could present their opportunities. Four central committee directors, as well as six senior, six junior, and four sophomore councilors performed their governing duties with the help of Mr. Stanley Dombrowski.

Elected in April 1974, the first class officers organized endeavors within the classes and facilitated communications between the student council and the Viking population. Taking office in September, class representatives included a delegate and an alternate from each homeroom. By attending class meetings, these individuals kept their homerooms well informed of all C.C.H.S. functions and read daily announcements along with student council and class minutes.

Students Volunteer Scholarly Services

Creating an enthusiasm for scholarship, stimulating a desire to render aid, promoting worthy leadership, and encouraging the development of character, National Honor Society members met every first Thursday of the month to plan activities. Under the direction of Sister Marie Perpetua, S.S.J., and the helping hand of president Kathy Ryan, these deserving Centralites moderated the history and language resource centers and tutored students who requested subject strengthening.

This year, a changed voting procedure influenced eligibility requirements and a revised induction ceremony in March presented new electees of the association to the faculty and student body. May seminars at Lehigh University advised these upperclassmen concerning upcoming plans and events.

Ring Day Sparkles With Senior Spirit

On the morning of September 26, seniors participated in a ring day ceremony marked by a distinctive difference. For the first time in four years, underclassmen remained absent from the celebration and only '75 graduates took part in the blessing of their circular tokens.

Father Birch celebrated the Mass and addressed the graduating class stressing the symbolic importance of the jeweled bands and the necessity of unity among senior class members. Parents, invited to take part in the joyous occasion, listened to Father's words and realized the responsibility their offspring accepted with the green and gold stones.

That night, beginning at eight o'clock in Masson, a dance organized by the efforts of Sister Ida Marie, O.S.F., brought this momentous occasion to a "bumpy" end and left behind in the minds of seniors a sentimental memory.

Juniors Journey on a Romantic Road

Glitter and candlelight warmed a brisk evening on November 29 when sixty-two couples enjoyed the cozy atmosphere of the Junior Prom held in Masson hall. Music by the Royal Dukes, along with enchanting murals created a mystic mood for dancing.

The gala event, supervised by Mrs. Barbara J. Gorman, came to a climax with the crowning of Janine Gifford and her escort, Thomas Gaughan, as king and queen. Katherine Bucha and Patrick Ryan, and Mary Kay Luchansky and William Straccia comprised the court.

The festivities continued at the Parkway Bowling Lanes, the site of the post-prom, where breakfast at 5:00 a.m. brought the occasion to a close, and found these prom-goers saying, "We may never pass this way again."

Tevye Brings Jewish Rituals to Central

"A fiddler on the roof sounds crazy, no?" but not here in our little village of Central Catholic. The transformation from amateurs into aspiring actors and actresses took three months of tedious preparation in order to portray native customs of Anatevka in 1904.

In the leading role, Joseph McMann played Tevye, a dairyman, and Kathy Ryan starred as his dominating wife, Golde. Together, they tried to scratch out a living while finding learned, wealthy men for their five daughters. Witnessing many broken traditions before being evicted by the Russians, these poor peasants discovered a changing world surrounding them.

The cast and chorus directed by Sister St. Elizabeth, I.H.M., the pit orchestra under the supervision of Mr. John Bookholt, and the dancers choreographed by Miss Stella, delighted audiences on December 8, 9, 14, and 15 in Masson. A standing ovation each evening marked every performance as a smashing success.

Bandsmen Manifest Musical Pageantry

Under the direction of Sister St. Elizabeth, I.H.M., and Mr. John Bookholt the 1974-75 Viking marching band demonstrated their spirited arrangements at pep rallies, at football game halftimes, and throughout the basketball season at pre-game shows. Some featured selections included "Yellow Submarine" and "Hey Jude."

These one hundred and twenty musicians also exhibited their accurate movements and captivated audiences at local and out of town parades. Some of these events included the Gimbels' Thanksgiving Day parade and the Allentown Halloween parade. By preparing and selling hoagies during the year, members increased their treasury to help support a trip to Disney World. Meeting on Wednesday nights, the Band Parents' Association offered invaluable financial assistance in addition to their help with make-up, costumes, and tickets at various productions.

Upper Right: Color guard step to the moving beat of "Washington Post March." Lower: C.C.H.S. band enlivens the streets of Pottsville in the Winter Carnival.

Marching Units Meet Demanding Schedule

Composed of twelve girls, C.C.H.S.'s majorettes, coached by Mrs. Barbara J. Gorman, performed at parades, at pep rallies, and at football and basketball halftime exhibitions. Coordinating various types of routines with appropriate musical selections, the squad displayed their marching and baton twirling capabilities.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Lucia Hoch, the band front, comprised of the color and the flag and rifle drill teams, choreographed formations to accompany the marching band. Segments of this group also executed maneuvers at pre-game activities throughout the basketball season.

At summer and after school meetings the two ensembles promenaded in the "pits" and around Ellinger and Jordon Streets perfecting their precision skills. Incorporated within the band, these regiments added an extra dimension of musical unity.

Assemblies Relieve Academic Routine

In an effort to present a well-rounded daily roster, the administration and student council offered entertaining and informative programs to the Centralite community. During A.M. and P.M. assemblies, some of these presentations included a history of rock music by WKAP, a demonstration of Transcendental Meditation, and a Christmas liturgical celebration.

Preserving tradition, Vikings witnessed the induction of student government officials and N.H.S. members. The student body also gathered to participate in pep rallies, to view the Lion's Club competition, and to meet the players in a winter sports introduction.

Journalists Zero in on Community Events

Meriting the Keystone Award from the Pennsylvania School Press Association and rated All-Catholic by the Catholic School Press Association, SENESCHAL, the popular C.C.H.S. newspaper, maintained a standard of excellence in its investigating and reporting techniques. Under the guidance of Sister Mary Ellen, I.H.M., and through the efforts of editor-in-chief, Jane Rossowski, writers communicated five times to the student body current attitudes concerning school situations and national and international topics.

Courses in journalistic writing prepared staff members to assume the responsibilities of planning a layout, assigning stores, gathering news, writing and revising articles, copyreading, and proofreading. Originating in Room 505, such columns as "Viking Viewpoints," "Green and Gold Gleanings," and "Victor Viking" added diversity to each paper, along with foreign correspondence submitted by Roger Minner, an exchange student in Australia. Ediorials and art work including cartoons rendered issues entertaining and informative.

Writers Encourage Spontaneous Talent

Maintaining a magazine-like format, the C.C.H.S. publication of QUILL and its members, under the supervision of Sister Grace Steckel, O.S.F., combined efforts to put together an anthology of literary works. Associates of the creative arts production, working in Room 506, examined imaginative pieces submitted by the entire student body. Poems, short stories, essays, and reviews comprised the scope of the annual issue.

Attempting to preserve quality, the editorial board led by Ann Dorsey, analyzed and graded Centralite contributions. A bake sale held on November 16 assisted the art and business departments of the staff in keeping the monetary situation under control.

Craftsmen Depict Cherished Moments

Compiling an accurate and informative history of scholastic, co-curricular, and extra-curricular events, GLEN ECHOES captured the '75 school year with pictures and prose. Sister Immaculata Mary, I.H.M., inspired and assisted co-editors, Susan Trentalange and Anne Yaindl, and the staff in creating a successful one hundred and forty-four page annual.

Attempting to maintain the rating "Publication of Distinction" from the Catholic School Press Association and merit first place recognition from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, photo-journalists worked arduously after school and on weekends writing, cropping and typing to meet pressing deadlines.

Like many other C.C.H.S. institutions, the yearbook also executed some major alterations. For the first time juniors joined forces with seniors in the actual layout and production of the book. Another prominent change occurred in May of '74 when the publication signed a new contract with the Taylor Publishing Company in Texas.

Activists Reach Out to Foreign Cultures

Sponsored by the Allentown Rotary Association and under the supervision of Sister John Beatrice, S.S.J., Central's Interact Club pledged to promote universal understanding and to perform a community, district, and international service project in keeping with its constitution. By conducting a yard sale on November 23, the organization raised $156 to replenish their depleted treasury. This Rotarian committee also volunteered assistance at the Allentown Girls' Club and entertained foreign guests at their bi-weekly meetings.

Language clubs also sought to improve world relations by breaking communication barriers. For a second year, the German Club moderated by Sister M. Wilburga, O.S.F., supplemented classroom activities by recording originally created tapes and by treating themselves to a Christmas party where they enjoyed consuming customary German recipes. Meeting in Room 306, members also learned to play German bingo and assembled a songbook of lyrics from Deutschland.

Through an informal situation in the language resource center and through the aid of slides, filmstrips, and guest speakers the Spanish Club extended an invitation to Centralites interested in the nation's heritage. During a yuletide celebration at Casa Guadalupe, upperclassmen amused pre-schoolers with games and prizes.

Concerned Teenagers Promote Involvement

Serving others in the community who need their help, Teens for Christian Action, led by Sister Emily Therese, R.S.M., and assisted by president Janet Konapelsky, collected soda can rings throughout the school to buy time on a kidney machine. This group of girls also requested from the student body canned goods for Thanksgiving baskets to donate to Casa Guadalupe.

Representing young people in Allentown city government, the Council of Youth unit at Central sponsored "Youth Speaks Conferences" and held concerts at the Allentown Fair Grounds. C.C.H.S.'s members included seniors Thomas McGonigle, the group's vice-president, and John Oehmke and junior Michael Emig, the treasurer.

Experienced Orators Captivate Audiences

Developing skills in the various techniques of theater, the Drama Club's aspiring thespians exercised different aspects of dramatics and competed in stage presentations and oral interpretations. Under the new direction of Mr. Constantine Pappas and the guidance of president, Jeanne Billman, these actors and actresses, practicing on a weekly basis, delivered their talents in performing the play, YOU, THE JURY.

Sister Joan Marie Berk, S.S.J., Sister Mary Ellen Ford, S.S.J., Mr. William Tielman, and Mr. Constantine Pappas coached forensic members participating in declamatory, original, and extemporaneous oratory, and debate. These spokesmen aimed in their activities to master the art of public speaking through the writing and delivery of various types of speeches.

Their approach, diction, voice inflection, and argumentative capabilities awarded this group first, second, and third place trophies in diocesan tournaments. Three meets for original and declamatory talks challenged would be Demothenes from October to December, while three competitions from January to March permitted debators and extemporaneous speakers to test their abilities.

Effervescence Pours Through Gymnasium

Utilizing balance beams, horses, uneven parallel bars, and floor mats, gymnasts, under the steady hand of Mrs. Deborah Ellsworth, practiced their acrobatic abilities every Monday and Thursday evenings in Rockne. With no grade restrictions barring participation fifty-five females vaulted and maneuvered in preparing for an April assembly.

Establishing and maintaining proper school spirit, the Pep Club, moderated by Sister Miriam Patrice, O.S.F., planned pep rallies, assisted the Booster Club in the sale of athletic programs, and most importantly encouraged pride in all C.C.H.S. endeavors and accomplishments. Kevin Fitzpatrick, the squad's leader, and the other clubbers sold mugs to help build up their treasury and formulated a "This Is Your Life" skit featuring Kevin Earley. Other spirit showers that strived to rouse incentive before games included caravans and decorated hallways.

Masculine Ingenuity Services Community

Under the watchful eye of Mr. Bernard Tackas, twenty-five upperclass males constructed scenery and sets for the broadway production of FIDDLER ON THE ROOF in Masson and for the spring musicale in Rockne. This unheralded group also switched props and backdrops between acts, and regulated curtains.

Key Club members, supervised by Mr. Stanley Dombrowski, achieved recognition by service to the school and church, thereby instilling in themselves the qualities of leadership, courage, and responsibility. John Waldron, president of the group, led the young men in painting the library, janitorial closets, and English planning room. This fellowship also performed an ecology project by helping the Pure Egg Company of eastern Pennsylvania with chickens, and assisted the Heart Fund and "Meals On Wheels."

Right: Stage crew enthusiasts take a deserved bow after they complete a setting of Tevye's house. Lower: Key clubbers strike an informal pose in the library before their weekly meeting.

Technicians Display Precision Skills

Developing and encouraging creative artistic talent, the Art Club, under the guiding efforts of Mr. William Eggleston, provided an outlet for Centralites possessing expressionistic abilities. Keith Suppan, the group's president, helped members in preparing works for public exhibition in the entrance hall to Rockne. To foster interest among artisans, the association offered field trips to the Allentown Art Museum and to the Metropolitan in New York City.

Science oriented students unfolded technological discoveries through intricate experimentation made possible through the Science Club. Associates met individually with their instructors in preparation for the Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Science Regional Symposium hosted at Central in February and for the State Meeting at Seven Springs in April. Participants selected and developed a research project which each presented and defended orally to a panel of judges.

Associates Manage Responsible Duties

By volunteering their services for a few mods a cycle, the library aides assisted Sister Sponsa Regis, I.H.M., and Mrs. Thelma Schmidt in running the bookroom smoothly and efficiently. Checking out materials, replacing books and periodicals, processing publications, and filing cards for the reference catalog enabled these students to learn from first-hand experience some of the basics of library technology, thereby increasing their own skills in locating information.

Under the management of Sister Helene Marie, O.S.F., three business oriented males equipped the C.C.H.S. student body with school supplies, gym suits, and uniform blouses. Located on the top floor of Rockne, the stationery store also served as a terminal for lost and found items.

Senior Prom Mirrors Timeless Memories

Jim Croce's "Time In A Bottle" seemed an appropriate theme for the Class of '75 as they captured one more enchanting keepsake for high school days. The Holiday Inn East set the scene on May 23 for misty-eyed romantics to escape into a dream world.

Supervised by Sister Miriam Patrice, O.S.F., excited prom-goers enjoyed colorful festivities. Following a beef and chicken dinner, couples danced the night away to the sounds of the Variations. As the hours slipped out of reach, happy pairs recollected precious moments together as the event quickly became a part of the past.

Musicians Salute Entertainment World

Displaying diverse talents, the various choral groups, the stage band, and the orchestra captivated audiences in Rockne with delightful sounds on April 25, 26, and 27 for the Thirty-Seventh Annual Musicale. This year's theme, LET US ENTERTAIN YOU, did just that as both young and old enjoyed such selections as "It's A Wonderful Thing" sung by the special chorus and "Concert Beguine" performed by the orchestra. An added segment of the production commemorated the aniversary of the Holy Year with the forceful "Hallelujah Chorus."

Composed of a medley of Broadway hits, the finale "Curtaintime" climaxed each evening of musical showmanship. Directed by Sister St. Elizabeth, I.H.M., and Mr. John Bookholt, the spring presentation afforded auditory pleasure to all music lovers.

EXHILARATION

In pursuit of our potentials, we develop the stamina that allows us to create bonds of sportsmanship. Every step towards accomplishment consists of tied-up emotions and undying perseverance. When the end result emerges, the importance lies not in whether we rejoice or suffer but that we have tried and that we have accepted the outcome.

Gridders Finish on a Winning Streak

After a sluggish start in September, the Vikings put themselves together and ended the '74 football season with five consecutive wins.

At first, head coach Walt King found it difficult to get the offense moving and the defense strong enough to prevent being scored upon. Both units began reaching capacity playing level mid-way through the schedule. The club suffered some close losses before its initial victory over Belvidere. Then Dieruff, Freedom, Emmaus, and Wilson Boro fell to the Vikes enabling them to compile a creditable 5-5-1 record.

Vikes Maintain Drive and Motivation

Putting their best efforts forward, beginning gridders attempted to attain favorable standings qualifying them for future varsity competition. The j.v.'s, under Mr. Eugene Boyle, and the frosh, guided by Mr. Ernest Ibarra, devoted hours to constructing plays and perfecting basic skills.

Determination and pride saw these teams through a rough season. The freshmen picked up two wins over the Red Rovers and the Golden Hawks while the junior varsity edged out an initial victory by conquering Becahi in their last outing. Together, both squads hold considerable promise for an upcoming powerhouse.

Boosters Ignite Exuberant Crowds

Inciting fans to support various athletic events, cheerleading took on a mod look this year. Varsity, reduced to ten girls, led invigorating chants at basketball and football happenings. Cheering for the j.v.'s in these two sports, the junior varsity increased to eight rousers, as did the wrestling routers who spurred the matmen on to victory.

Try-outs occurred in the spring for all squads as opposed to the old "make it and move up" custom. Guided by Miss Andrea Varrichio, a former C.C.H.S. cheerleader, these three groups upheld Central's reputation as the "most spirited school."

Grapplers Possess Spirited Qualities

Moving into the E.P.L. and picking up extremely stiff competition posed a challenging feat for the matmen. Under the coaching abilities of Mr. Lawrence Gasda, daily workouts in Rockne cafeteria, along with strict diets, developed both mind and body conditions that kept the Vikings in league contention.

Raymond Cash, at the 147 pound weight class, recorded the top mark for individual efforts by ending up 12-2. Pinning down Catasauqua and Phillipsburg Catholic made the grueling hours of practice worthwhile.

In keeping with the rising popularity of girls' athletics, the Vikettes remained true to form. Confident from November, the team combined forces to lead a stable attack against their E.P.L. rivals. Behind the offense, Kathy Straccia, the league's leading scorer, powered the charge while Liz Martin and Tina Dishman controlled the boards.

Experienced coaching by Sister Ida Marie, O.S.F., endorsed the everlasting spirit that produced a winning squad. An added attraction this year appeared in the personage of Sylvia Mayernik, our first female mascot, who supported the club at games and pep rallies.

Cagers Exert Hustle in Board Battles

During this most peculiar season of ups and downs, optimism prevailed over the Viking courtmen keeping their confidence high and their spirit from dying. One of the tallest in the league, Dave Pfahler's team came back from deficits and beat tough opponents to stay alive in the E.P.L. race. With each game being so unpredictable, excitement presented itself every Tuesday and Friday evenings.

Led by senior captain, Bob Wootsick, a well-played press and tight defense paved the way to victory. Impressive wins over Catasauqua, an independent contest at the Christmas vacation, Freedom, and Liberty in both the first and second halves indicated that the club refused to lose hope.

Upper: Bob Wootsick plays a close man-to-man defense. Lower Left: Ed Topper and Bob Wootsick tie up an Allen player forcing a jump ball. # Girls Capture Third Consecutive Crown

In a showdown on February 25, the Vikettes met Dieruff for the East Penn League title. The contest, like the previous seasonal meetings, remained close and kept fans on the edge of their seats. At the end of regulation play the scoreboard registered a 37-37 tie, but an overtime spree carried Central to a 49-43 triumph and to another championship.

Beginning the District 11 playoffs on February 27, the squad destroyed Pine Grove with a balanced attack by a 47-27 score. Kathy Straccia hit for her 1,000 career point in the game to become one of three females to accomplish this feat in C.C.H.S. history. In a predicted tough battle on March 1, the team bowed to Emmaus 44-38, completing a year of outstanding efforts.

Hoopsters Sweep the Court With Agility

Sharing the limelight with the varsity, the junior varsity and freshman teams demonstrated their basketball abilities. With classy ball-control and a pressure packed defense, the little Vikes harassed their adversaries to commit numerous costly mistakes.

The j.v.'s, coached by Mr. John Darraugh, used smooth teamwork in avoiding defeat. Working around accurate shooting and strong rebounding by Brian Radon, the club finished 12-10 for the season. The frosh squad, under the training of Mr. Joseph Nork, gained the respect of Centralite fans by compiling a remarkable 13-4 record. With such an abundance of talent, the years ahead hold much promise for a strong E.P.L. contender.

Vikings Shine the Diamonds

Viking sluggers once again took to the diamond in early March with the beginning of spring training. Seven returning lettermen supplied the central offensive force under new head coach, Mr. Richard Demmel.

Retaining the necessary determination and enthusiasm to produce a successful season, the Vikings challenged such E.P.L. rivals as Allen, Becahi, and Dieruff. Finishing a hard-fought schedule on May 21, the club proved themselves a strong-hitting, high calibre baseball team.

Females Stalk the Bases

Determined young women headed outdoors with the arrival of spring to participate in one of Central's fast growing sports, softball. Last year's unexperienced underclassmen returned to formulate the strength of this year's club. Coached by Miss Carol Myliborski, the Vikettes showed the many talents they possessed.

Improved batting and pitching helped the girls achieve a successful season. With a thirteen game schedule that began on March 27 against Becahi, to the final opponent, Easton, on May 12, the squad fought to stay atop the league.

Rugged Netmen Spike Opponents

Inspired by new head coach, Mr. Eugene Boyle, the volleyball team met the call of competition with optimistic attitudes. Encountering a tough sixteen game schedule, conditioned minds and bodies became one of the league's top contenders.

Excelling in the execution of basic techniques, the squad geared themselves for victory. Hours of strenuous practice paid off when the Vikes hit the courts, using skilled set-ups and quick returns to overpower the opposition. Coming to an end with the Easton Tournament in March, Central's men turned in another hard-fought season.

Duffers Encounter Difficult Challenge

Due to inclement weather conditions in the spring, East Penn League officials switched golf to a fall sport this September. Mr. Mark Alvaro, in his first year as coach, accompanied the move. Under his leadership, the team adjusted favorably to the change.

Stiff competition composed a fourteen game schedule. The club came up with three wins by defeating Dieruff once and Phillipsburg twice. Senior co-captains Pat McCormick and Jeff Osborne worked with the underclassmen in developing a precisioned swing and in perfecting accurate putting to insure a better showing next season.

Strategists Unleash Vigor and Vitality

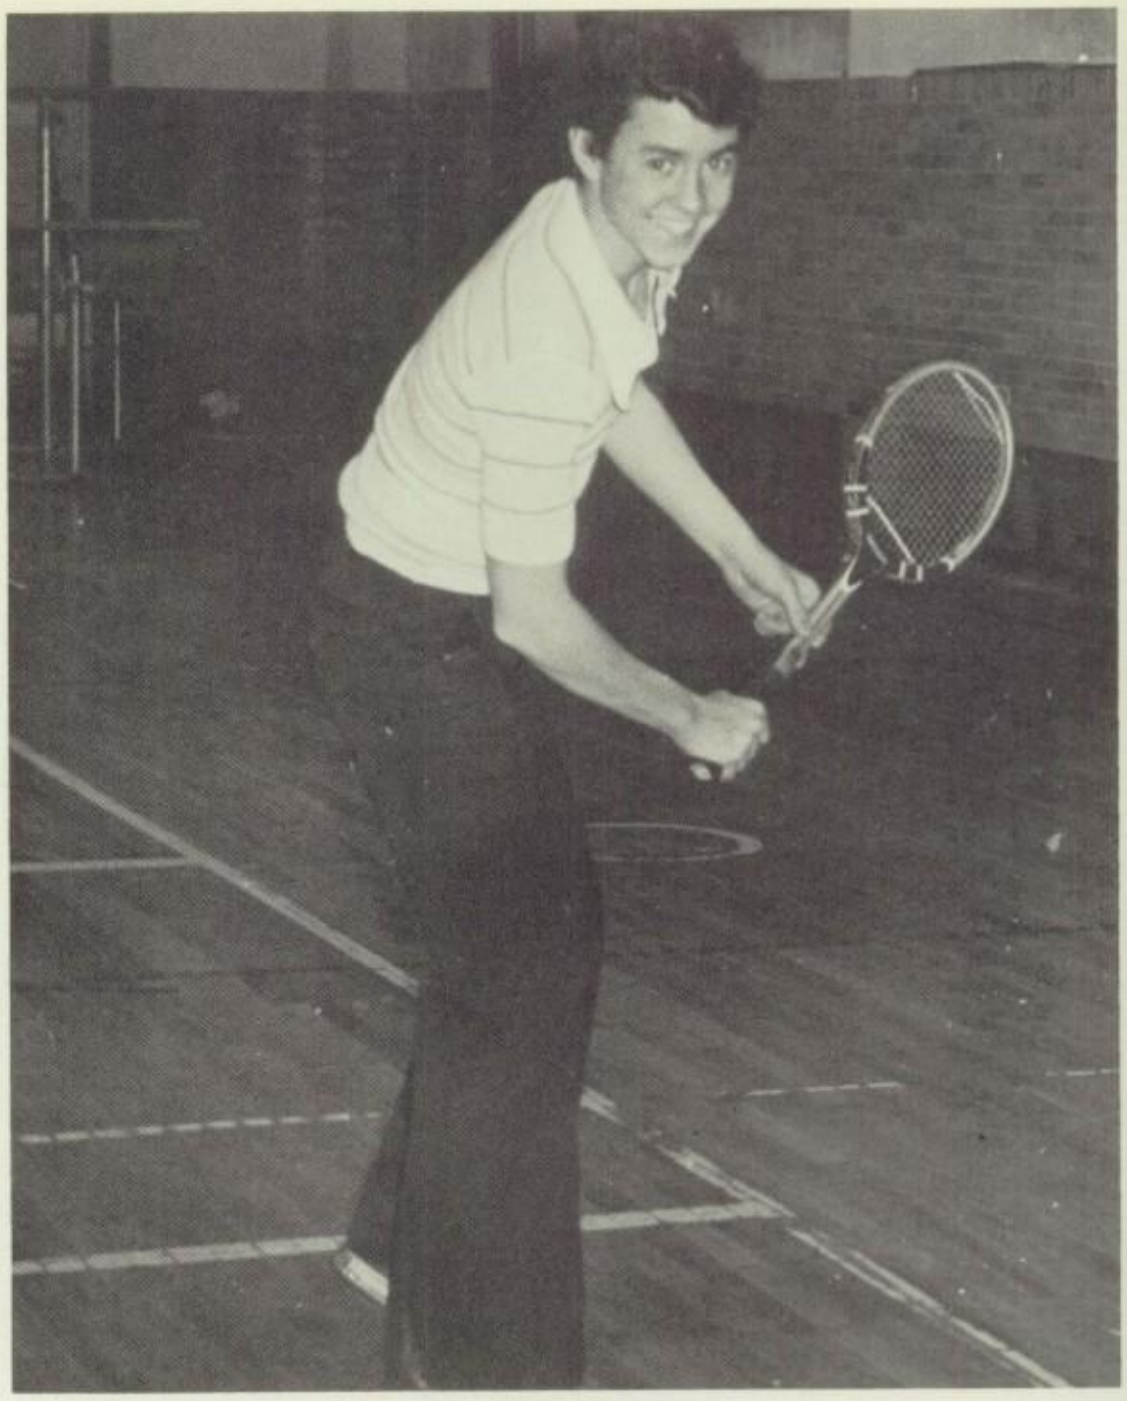
With the revival of a tennis team, eager Viking netmen took the opportunity to improve serves, lobs, and chops. Advised by Reverend George Wierzalis, the squad played out of the Vantage Point Raquet Club and defeated such E.P.L. rivals as Becahi and Dieruff.

Matching wits against their Penn-Jersey League competitors, the chessmen, supervised by Mr. Richard Wasatonic, applied skillful tactics and moves in turning down eight of their ten opponents. Practice sessions before each game contributed to the team's success on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in room 408, as the seven members developed into firm contenders.



Right: Bill Kanehann demonstrates the proper backhand grip. Lower: Dave Parry and Brian Clause along with Dan Pechacek and Brian Pummer try to conquer the others' king during a pre-match warm up.

Workouts Begin and End Busy Schedule

Planned and supervised by the physical education department, intramurals expanded from basketball for boys to include volleyball for girls. The males occupied Rockne from 7:30 to 8:00 o'clock each morning and these champs took on the faculty in a final bid for supremacy. In turn, the females owned the court during 15th and 16th mods every afternoon to strengthen their abilities.

Those not wishing to actively participate in the games volunteered their services by keeping score and by supporting the teams with their attendance. The success of this year's program insured a broader and more diverse one for next September.

ANTICIPATION

In our journey, we encountered many crossroads. As freshmen, our beginning offered unfamiliar surroundings. As sophomores, our venturing out proposed an opportunity for advancement. As juniors, our final step presented anxieties. As dreams beckon us onward, we search to make them realities.

FROSH SPIRIT!

Freshmen Strive for Challenging Goals

Confused and restricted, at first, by new limitations of modular scheduling, the Class of '78 eventually adapted to the life of academics and activities at C.C.H.S. Moderated SRL's in Rockne cafeteria and the traditional "six majors" accompanied by minors in music, health, and physical education constituted the freshman curriculum. Along more entertaining lines, some newcomers engaged in such active clubs as Interact, and T.C.A., while others found satisfaction in the musical production of FIDDLER ON THE ROOF, in the marching band or in the orchestra. As a whole, the frosh unveiled determination in both the magazine and candy drives.

With Reverend A. Gregory Uhrig as advisor and class officers, Kathleen Temprine, Jean-Pierre Azar, Mary Connolley, and Denise Hanner, the youngest Vikings promised to carry on Central's tradition of exceptional school spirit.

Sophomores Express Enthusiastic Spirit

Having survived the initiation process and having expanded their sense of responsibility, second year students volunteered distinctive efforts which distinguished them in the Viking community. Academically, sophs strived to understand the new realms of the modular system and to grasp the knowledge of courses such as geometry, biology, and foreign languages. Extra curricular enthusiasm mounted in the directions of junior varsity and varsity sports, student council involvement, and the Halloween dance.

Kathleen Kanehann, Ralph Jaccodine, Nancy Ryan, and Jane Bender, under the supervision of Reverend Edward B. Connolly, communicated and toiled zealously to strengthen personal relationships among class members. Because of their concern, a unified spirit bloomed throughout the halls of Masson.

Juniors Anticipate Upperclass Status

Looking ahead to senior year, the Class of '76 acknowledged itself as a spark igniting school spirit not only at sport functions, but at out of school activities as well. With the coming of our nation's birthday in 1976, juniors unleashed incentive on a Bicentennial Committee headed by John McFadden. Third year students devoted their remaining energies to planning the prom, preparing for SAT's, and examining college catalogs.

Mrs. Barbara J. Gorman acted as moderator and advised class officers, John Flynn, William Straccia, Deborah Fisher, and Kathleen Frensky, in organizing future senior week activities.

JUBILATION

We arrived as strangers possessing the spirit of openness. Together we experienced joy and sorrow, laughter and tears. We grew in knowledge, understanding, and love. Now, we leave as friends enriched by our memories and confident of the future.

Centralites Merit Academic Recognition

Continuous, dedicated work on the scholastic and service levels made these fifteen students worthy of the high acclaim given them. Carrying out the responsibility placed upon them by the modular system of independent study, these young masters met challenges with enthusiasm and sought to conquer any obstacles barring success.

Outstanding achievement affirmed national esteem for Jane Scharle as a winner of the Westinghouse National Science Search and for Kathy Ryan as the recipient of the National Council of Teachers of English Writing Award. Future plans for trying to better our world include collegiate and professional vocations for these scholars.

Class of 1975 Views Future Opportunities

Many changes occurred during our years here at Central and for seniors a very dominant one altered the usual commencement ceremony. Suggested by Father Birch and agreed upon by senior class officers, a combined Baccalaureate Mass and commencement exercise replaced the traditional two night event.

On Friday evening, June 6, Rockne hall, filled to capacity with family, faculty, and friends, set the scene for the activities while the sound of "Pomp and Circumstance" created a poignant atmosphere. Donned with caps and gowns, graduates participated in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, celebrated by Reverend Thomas J. Birch, and reflected upon the past four years of discovery and growth. Proceeding the offertory, Monsignor Raymond J. Leichner conferred diplomas and distributed scholastic awards. Following the valedictory speech, the class's last experience in high school ended with a blessing for continued success.

Upper Right: Andrew Niehaus, MaryLou Butler, and Thomas Miller reminisce about all their hectic but joyful times they shared at C.C.H.S. Lower Right: Led by the Central Committee, graduates promenade down Fourth Street to the affair which will finalize their secondary education. Lower Left: Seniors rise in anticipation for the turn of the tassle.

We Continue to Evolve . . .

Combining memories for the Class of '75 has proven a trying yet rewarding adventure for us. Throughout this year, we have experienced many mix-ups and a few near-disasters, but also joy and satisfaction in so great an undertaking.

We would like to thank each of you: the administration, faculty, personnel, and students for your sincere cooperation.

In particular, we would like to express our deepest gratitude to . . .

. . . Rev. H. Strassner and the parishioners of St. Paul's Church for graciously permitting us to use their vestibule for our bake sales.

. . . Jim Hopps for sharing with us his brilliant photography in our closing section.

. . . Debra Coyle and Keith Suppan for their skills in reproducing and perfecting our cover design.

. . . Richard Kloss, a '72 graduate, for his camera work in our time of need.

. . . Parents and friends for their generous help in financing our publication.

. . . Carl Wolf Studio, Mr. John Stevens, and Miss Louise Crisci for their taking and processing our pictures.

. . . Taylor Publishing Company and Mr. Edward Patrick for their personal guidance in the production of our book.

. . . Sister Immaculata Mary, I.H.M. for her patience and support in our unending search for excellence.

Co-editors . . . . . Susan Trentalange
Anne Yaindl
Associate Editors . . . . . Kathleen Frensky
Margaret Stolz
Business Manager . . . . . Anne Dombrowski
Photographers . . . . . Eric Loch
William Yurvati
Staff . . . . . Nancy Gigler
Loretta Lewellyn
Linda Truchan

As the day dawns each morning and sets each evening, our lives
proceed to
